THIS WEEK'S LATEST BEAUTY NEWS...

WATER BABE

Olympic swimming champion Leisel Jones has earned her beauty stripes, snagging herself a contract as the Aussie face of marine-based brand Thalgo. Formed for bringing a touch of glamour to sport, Leisel knows all too well the nightmare that chlorine can be to skin. 'I'm training for up to five hours, which can wreak havoc on my skin,' said Leisel. 'Since using Thalgo products my skin has never felt so soft and moist.' The self-confessed beauty queen is using the deal to kick-start her future career. 'I want to open my own spa when my swimming career comes to an end,' explains the entrepreneurial swim star.

FOND OF FONDA

Classic beauty – and L'Oréal Paris ambassador – Jane Fonda has just turned 70. No, we're not joking! So what did she have to say on this coming-of-age? Apparently, life only gets better as you get older! 'It took me until 62 to work out who I was,' says Jane, who feels more comfortable with herself now than she ever has. 'Beauty is self-esteem,' she adds. Sound advice from one of the world's true beauties.

TIP! Divide hair into sections and apply styling products with your fingertips to avoid build-up

Heidi Klum's stylist Evin Austin says, 'The trick here is to make sure the curls are loose and natural, and never overloaded with product, which will only make the hair look stiff.' Our tip: focus on preparation.

How to...

- 1 Start by washing your hair with a curl-enhancing shampoo and conditioner (1). Towel-dry hair before combing through a curl-control cream (2).
- 2 So that the curls look natural – not identical (a tell-tale sign of curling tongs) – use a large ceramic styling brush (3). Wrap the hair around the brush, applying heat from your hair dryer to each section. Once dry, unwind the brush, twisting as you go.
- 3 If you have a fringe, part it where your hair naturally separates and use the same drying technique but pull the hair straighter. Finish with a texture-defining spray (4) for hold.
